

So, you’ve signed the Refusal to Vaccinate document?

Posted on January 26, 2015 | 80 Comments

Perhaps you missed DO NOT SIGN the “Refusal to Vaccinate” Form and unwittingly signed the form!

What to do next?

Start by asking for the original back. Tell the doctor (or whoever) that your “family” decided for many reasons (we came up with 12) that it was not good to have it in your (or your child’s) file. It is best not to offer any more information than that or engage in any discussion, but to remain firm but pleasant. When it comes to vaccines, anything you tell them can be used against you, believe it or not!

The doctors have been warned that if they don’t have this form on file, the parent could sue the doctor should the child get one of the diseases the vaccine was ‘supposed’ to prevent. The lawyers for the vaccine agenda have pitted the doctors against the health and safety of their patients. Sad, huh? We have proof of this because we’ve read the instruction page that accompanied the Refusal to Vaccinate form that was given to physicians, et al.

If the doctor’s office does not cooperate, you will have to send them a certified letter “rescinding your signature” thus nullifying the form. It is also recommended that you send them a Vaccination Notice to end all disputes regarding vaccines.

Here is a sample letter reflecting what I would write:

Dear Doctor Bloohoo,

Unfortunately, I mistakenly signed the Refusal to Vaccinate form regarding my son (or daughter) that your office asked me to sign. After discussion with my family, I have decided that this form was not in our best interest to sign and have placed in my son’s (or daughter’s) file.

I hereby rescind my signature on that form making it null and void and require that your office return the original to me.

I (we) have concluded, after much research, that vaccinations today are neither safe nor effective and that the theory of “herd immunity” has been scientifically proven invalid many times. So I am sending you my (our) own Vaccination Notice. Please include this notice in my son’s (or daughter’s) medical record.

Appreciatively,

Jane Doe (Mother of Sally Doe)
125 Maple Canyon
Canton, Ohio

Enclosed: Vaccination Notice

The Vaccination Notice instructions and link can be found on this page.

Advertisements

SHARE THIS:

Twitter

Print

Facebook

Google

Loading...

- DO NOT SIGN the Refusal to Vaccinate form!
In "corruption"
- School vaccination exemption lost in California . . . what now?
In "Government"
- Why is mainstream media targeting vaccine-aware parents?
In "corruption"

This entry was posted in Pediatricians, scientific fraud, vaccine. Bookmark the permalink.

80 RESPONSES TO “SO, YOU’VE SIGNED THE REFUSAL TO VACCINATE DOCUMENT?”

Vira | September 12, 2015 at 12:29 am | Reply

What if you just switch doctors and ask for your child’s file instead of it being faxed to your new doctor, would you be able to get the originals that way, or do they keep a copy of all records for themselves?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | September 12, 2015 at 12:58 pm | Reply

Physicians are moving their files into electronic records so they can be shared and/or transferred electronically.

★ Like

Vira | September 12, 2015 at 12:59 pm |

Meaning, they will still keep the original?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | September 12, 2015 at 10:28 pm |

Don't know. And they all might not be doing it the exact same way.

★ Like

Marg | October 8, 2015 at 8:49 pm | Reply

When did this “refusal to vaccinate” form first come out? I don’t think I signed it. I have 4 children 2 vaccinated (although not up to date) and 2 unvaccinated.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | October 9, 2015 at 7:25 pm | Reply

The form states it was copyrighted in 2013 and revised in 2014.

It might be optional for physicians. Although it is strongly recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

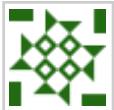

★ Like

Vira | October 9, 2015 at 8:28 pm |

I know i used to sign a few for my 5 year old, but they looked different then, and i used to make few simple changes on it with my initials before signing it. This new one is recent.

★ Like

Shelley | November 26, 2015 at 12:21 pm | Reply

I signed this for my eldest after much badgering and pushing from the pediatrician’s staff. It was in FL and we now live in TX could i call and mail this form? Or would something else be better?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | November 27, 2015 at 11:10 pm | Reply

Try sending them a letter requesting they remove the form from their records. Since your child is no longer their patient, they may very well oblige you.

★ Like

Andrea | December 7, 2015 at 4:31 pm | Reply

What form do we send or give to the pediatrician then? I’m not sure my daughter signed this form she just had a baby.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | December 8, 2015 at 11:06 am | Reply

Start by asking your daughter.

★ Like

Pingback: DO NOT SIGN the Refusal to Vaccinate form! | Parents Against Mandatory Vaccines

Maden | December 11, 2015 at 1:30 pm | Reply

What should one do if every doctor in the area requires this form to be signed. I’ve called all Peds in our area and they all required this to be signed in order to be a patient who doesn’t receive vaccinations.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | December 11, 2015 at 3:30 pm | Reply

If you call them on the phone, that is what their office employees have been told to say. You don’t need to go for “well visits”. They are a scam. So, wait until your child has a broken bone or something and use the Vaccination Notice for Physicians.

★ Like

Hélène | July 13, 2017 at 11:13 am |

Idk of a practice that will continue to see you if you dont do checkups at least every so often. They will refuse to treat you for anything.

★ Like

AL Whitney | July 14, 2017 at 11:27 am |

Read about and exercise your right of informed “dissent”.
<https://parentsaganinstmandatoryvaccines.net/2017/07/14/patients-right-of-informed-dissent/>

★ Like

Hélène | July 14, 2017 at 2:58 pm |

That article link wasnt about check ups. They dont want to perform a procedure or do other treatment. They want to scan for treatments they can possibly find to call necessary. Without these checkups to monitor development and growth, they feel its too risky to continue to give acute care when needed. My state insurance probably insists on it too... medicaid. Or else the dr gets in trouble. They harass me constantly for pap, colon n breast cancer screenings. They harassed me for yrs with these kids to get lead testing done. Would that a practitioner have the acute care when necessary protocol in their office!

★ Like

kewukiah | March 7, 2016 at 1:18 am | Reply

Another option is to use a family practice doctor instead of a pediatrician. Family practice doctors are often less insistent on vaccination than pediatricians.

★ Like

Hélène | July 13, 2017 at 11:11 am |

I see a PA, not even an MD, in a family practice. The MD whose office it is tho, demands the exemption form be signed. They will not see the kids if I do not sign it.
We dont have to go to an MD we dont want, but they dont have to accept patients they dont want either.
This office already lets us slide in regards to wellchild checks. I only go every two yrs except for illnesses or injuries that I cant treat at home.
The ridiculous packet of mental hygiene forms we just had to fill out becuz my daughter is now 12 makes me think now we wont be going back in two yrs tho... “Have you ever had sex? Have you ever been frightened by a person?” Are you kidding me??? Also all can be used against me as the parent by a party seeking to remove my custody of my own children.
Nunya, Mr. MD...NUNYA

★ Like

AL Whitney | July 14, 2017 at 11:31 am |

Thanks for the good info. When we are given forms that ask impertinent questions, we just write in N/A, which stands for not applicable.

★ Like

Hélène | July 14, 2017 at 3:04 pm |

The entire packet of forms was impertinent. But my ins insists on it once they hit 12yo. Gotta screen for those abused, sexually active kids who need shelter and birth control. God Forbid the parents mite do THEIR job!
Im going to fite it in two yrs. Writing n/a mite be a good start. They want the child to fill it out tho. My kids so confused as to why they were asking about sex... Shes not quite sure what it is even, theyre hsled.
I already fite so much stuff, vaxxs, etc. The PA was also asking her about depression. For gosh sakes, now my kids wondering if she should be depressed! Or if she is...
Oh i want to punch these idiots! My 12yos a happy go lucky kid. Leave her be.

★ Like

Jen | May 2, 2016 at 9:23 am | Reply

What if you sogned it because it was required for your child to go to school here in tx? I didnt have a doctor sign it just myself and the receptionist at the school.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | May 18, 2016 at 11:17 pm | Reply

If you read the article you will discover there are different forms for the physician's offices.

★ Like

onlymysideofthestory | May 27, 2016 at 3:05 pm | Reply

I can't find the corporate name for Michigan Health Department on the Dun and Bradstreet website. Anyone know what it is?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | June 6, 2016 at 3:45 pm | Reply

Just locate the Dun and Bradstreet web site and type Michigan Health Department in the search box. You have to indicate whether or not it is your business or other.

★ Like

onlymysideofthestory | June 9, 2016 at 7:45 pm |

None of them look right

★ Like

Ivana | June 7, 2016 at 1:27 pm | Reply

Is this applicable in California as well? I do not vaccinate but info remember signing that form.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | June 7, 2016 at 6:44 pm | Reply

The form under discussion was issued by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

★ Like

natalya | July 1, 2016 at 10:04 am | Reply

I remember signing something for my daughter in 2011. I am not sure if I did for my son. Should I ask when I go to visit? I have since then transfered to a chiropractor. Should I just send a letter.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | July 1, 2016 at 11:48 am | Reply

If it was me, I'd ask for a copy of the document and review it.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | July 5, 2016 at 6:14 pm | Reply

It's likely that each office keeps their own copy. So, it most likely won't be used by the chiropractor.

★ Like

Lauren | July 3, 2016 at 11:06 am | Reply

Thank you for this. I signed one of these for each of my kids. I am now freaking out, I feel so stupid for not reading between the lines. I was thinking of just sending this letter for each of them. Can I just mail it or fax it?

★ Like

Sham | July 26, 2016 at 9:28 pm | Reply

Isn't there an "edited" form somewhere stating we refuse to vaccinate but the statements have been reworded to say things such as vaccines are unsafe, etc? I know there is a letter, but was thinking there was a form somewhere too.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | July 26, 2016 at 11:15 pm | Reply

There is info about using a one page 'notice' here:
<https://parentsaganinstmandatoryvaccines.net/vaccination-notice-for-physicians/>

★ Like

CJ | July 27, 2016 at 7:31 am | Reply

I signed this form but not in the presence of anyone. In fact, it was never discussed at all until I called to ask for the original. When I told the practice that we had talked about it as a family and decided we did not want that form in our daughter's file and that we would like the original back, the nurse gave me the run-around and the doctor attempted to dissuade me (this was an MD who had previously not pushed vaccination but has just joined a new group practice that requires this form). Before I proceed to the next step, I was wondering if giving them the Vaccination Notice would somehow validate the form that is currently valid since no one was there when I signed (and actually put more of a target on our family by so doing)? Is it better to leave things alone, or is it more important to get the original? Also, is it now too late in terms of a number being assigned to my child in a national vaccine database? In other words, is there now a tracking number assigned to her even if I get the original back?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | July 27, 2016 at 11:09 am | Reply

Here is what I would do.

I’d call them again and ask to speak to the office manager. I’d tell her/him:

“I mistakenly signed a “refusal to vaccinate” form at your office’s request. The form contained statements by the American Academy of Pediatrics that I now know are not factual. Do you want to return the form or must I send you a signature revocation?”

If they refuse, and offer some flimsy office policy, etc., I would thank them politely and hang up. I wouldn’t waste time in discussion. Then I would send them the Vaccination Notice and write on the top: This document supersedes the “Refusal to Vaccinate” form on file.

Info regarding The Vaccination Notice:
<https://parentsaganinstmandatoryvaccines.net/vaccination-notice-for-physicians/>

The Vaccination Notice also relieves them of liability from your suing them if your child suffers from complications should he/she contract one of the diseases they falsely claim the vaccine will protect them from. That is why physicians are told they MUST get parents who don’t vaccinate to sign this form. Some @$%& attorneys came up with this scheme.

Good luck and thank you for protecting your child (children) from this insidious pharmaceutical nightmare.

AL

★ Like

AOA | August 3, 2016 at 12:37 am | Reply

Hi AL,

First off thank you for this website. It’s wonderful.

Our son has had his first round of vaccines and we stopped afterwards based on our religious beliefs. We didn’t know until we spoke with our priest. So when I told our doctor we didn’t want to vaccinate anymore, she had me sign something comparable to this Refusal to Vaccinate form. I will ask for the original back and I will rescind my signature, but the examples of Vaccination Notice don’t mention anything about faith, it being more scientific/factual. We are also writing a letter for our son’s pre-school admissions paperwork, stating that we oppose vaccination based on our religious beliefs, as it is our right in New Jersey.

I find that our letter to the school plus our explanation to the doctor based on faith is in contradiction with the factual Vaccination Notice, right? I am worried they will nullify our statement of faith if we send the Vaccination Notice.

Or is it all ok and I should send the Notice anyways?

Thank you.

Ariane

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | August 3, 2016 at 10:31 pm | Reply

so, you are saying that if you belonged to a different religion you would trust big pharma’s vaccine products?

★ Like

Tabitha | August 10, 2016 at 12:00 pm | Reply

I had already signed several forms before realizing that it was not a good idea to do so. When I asked to have the original copies, I was told that they had all been “scanned into the system” and that the originals had already been then away. In this situation, what should I do to rescind and nullify the previous forms?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | August 10, 2016 at 10:06 pm | Reply

If it was me, I'd write a short rescission statement and demand that it get scanned into the system as well.

★ Like

Ylem | August 15, 2016 at 6:07 am | Reply

Ok If I don't sign the paper and I won't vaccinate, then they won't allow my children in school .. Where do I go from here, homeschooling? ?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | August 15, 2016 at 8:09 am | Reply

The 'Refusal to Vaccinate' form is being implemented by physicians, not schools. If it was me and my child, I'd use a Vaccination Notice for both.

<https://parentsaganinstmandatoryvaccines.net/the-vaccination-notice/>

★ Like

lilia phelps | August 26, 2016 at 1:42 am | Reply

I just discovered this info so I ended up signing one at a 2 month app. I am pretty sure they had scanned it into the system. do I send them a recession and ask them to scan it? if yes how do I word it. can i ask them to delete it from the system? also my 4 month app is due soon so I just bring the notice for that?.... Im in texas and the hospital had called and told my husband that we haven't been to a well visit , does that mean they are tracking my child? if we'll visit is a scam why are they calling me telling me to go get one?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | August 26, 2016 at 7:13 am | Reply

If it was me, I'd send the rescission letter with a Vaccination Notice.

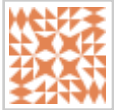

To our knowledge there is no statute requiring you to see a doctor when your son or daughter is well. The whole scam called “well baby visits” was set up to push vaccinations on unsuspecting parents and make more money for pediatricians.

Public health employees in each state are now setting up vaccination tracking systems, which could explain why hospital employees called your home. There is no way they can force info from you. Just politely tell them your baby is doing great and you are too busy to talk.

★ Like

Autum | September 2, 2016 at 11:01 pm | Reply

Isn't the letter the Vaccination Notice? If so why would u put Enclosed: Vaccination Notice?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | September 3, 2016 at 6:27 am | Reply

No, the letter is not the Vaccination Notice. More info is here:
<https://parentsaganinstmandatoryvaccines.net/the-vaccination-notice/>

★ Like

Conservativemumof3 | September 17, 2016 at 8:44 am | Reply

I've sent this to my Dr well over a month ago thru certified mail and even enclosed a sase to send me the papers I signed under pressure for my 3 children . I have not heard anything and am thinking about calling but I want to be prepared when they say I can have my forms back what's the right legal terms to use. Please help! Thank you

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | September 17, 2016 at 2:06 pm | Reply

Did you send the Vaccination Notice with the letter?

★ Like

rileyv90 | September 28, 2016 at 10:41 pm | Reply

I signed the refusal letter. I went back to the dr office and asked for it back but they said they already sent it in, and they wouldn't give me the original back when I asked for it. Is there a way to get it out of the system once it's scanned in? I'm in Texas. Do I just need to send in a recission letter and vaccination notice? Will that take care of it, or do I need to do something else? Will they send in the letter to the state that I'm resigning my signature and it's null and void? Or will it forever be in the states system regardless?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | October 11, 2016 at 6:38 am | Reply

Sorry, I don't know how these forms are processed in your state. It wouldn't hurt to send the rescission letter anyway.

★ Like

Megan | October 5, 2016 at 11:35 am | Reply

I unknowingly signed this form for my newest son. I called the doctors office and they will not remove it from the file..they say they can't remove Anything. However, if I changed doctors I could request that papers not be sent in their file. Is that a good option?? I've been wanting to switch anyway.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | October 11, 2016 at 6:36 am | Reply

If it was me, I'd ask for the records myself and take them to the new physician. That way I could remove the form.

★ Like

Ashley | October 14, 2016 at 11:25 pm | Reply

I am 33 weeks pregnant. And at my last two doctor visits I was asked if I wanted the tdap vaccine which they recommend for pregnant women to protect the baby against tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis. I refused the vaccine both times and was asked to sign a form stating I refused the vaccine. This was before I read this article so I signed them and now have two papers on file. Is this something I should be concerned about and try to get off file or should I not worry about it since the vaccines were intended for myself and not directly toward my baby. Thanks

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | October 17, 2016 at 1:01 pm | Reply

I'd ask to have the forms returned or removed from your file.

★ Like

Tabby | January 23, 2017 at 4:57 pm | Reply

What is the next step I should take if the office refuses to scan in the letter rescinding my signature on the vaccine refusal forms?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | January 26, 2017 at 6:58 pm | Reply

Make a note of the day you gave it to them and the name of the employee who refused you. As long as you keep a copy with these notations, your request cannot be denied.

★ Like

rootsmama | January 24, 2017 at 3:31 am | Reply

Hello, thank you so much for these helpful articles.
I birthed my son at home, unassisted, meaning without the presence of a medical professional, so for several months his birth remained unreported. Really wish I would've kept it that way! When he was 3 months old though we began thinking that someday we'll probably want to leave the U.S., and will need passports to do so. So, against my intuition I got him a birth certificate. When we went in to the gov building to sign the certificate, I was told I had to sign the vaccine refusal form. Unfortunately, I signed it and am now having quite a bit of regret and anxiety coming up... As a baby we once took him to a Naturopathic Doctor who is anti-vax and wonderful, and I never had to sign anything of the sort there. However the gov building has the original signed copy of the form and already electronically "sent it in"... I'm wondering if it's worth trying to get it back / nullified, or if that would just attract attention to us? We are off-grid homesteaders, obviously anti-vax, intending to homeschool and remain very low-key under the radar out in the forest. We're really not wanting to draw attention to us... Nowhere on any docs is our current address or phone number listed so I feel like it may be best to just let it be... What do you recommend?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | January 26, 2017 at 7:01 pm | Reply

Your baby now has a birth certificate and a social security number. Please read this to understand what having a social security number means.

<https://anticorruptionsociety.com/notice-of-condition-precedent-2/>

★ Like

Gina | February 4, 2017 at 1:10 am | Reply

Hello,
So last year I signed a refusal to vaccinate paper. I had no idea that it could be bad. I went back and asked for the original and the doctors office told me that they scan the papers and shred them and that everything is put into the computer. She told me they no longer had a paper copy. I spoke to the woman in charge at the time. She gave me a printed copy and the form said that I'm refusing certain shots at that time.
When they followed up the same woman told me that she spoke to her supervisor and they told her that once something is in his records it can not be removed. Do you know if this is true?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | February 5, 2017 at 1:04 pm | Reply

It may or may not be true. But, they can add your rescission to the chart.

★ Like

Kaley | February 9, 2017 at 11:39 pm | Reply

Hello. Thank you for this forum. I live in AL. I signed a form similar to the Refusal to Vaccinate at my local health department. It was formatted differently, but the language was the same. I was under the impression that it was required to receive the exemption certificates. Our children see a physician that respects our decision not to vaccinate. Should I attempt to obtain the original documents from the health department at this point? Would it be wise to submit a rescission letter and notice as well? Our family is planning to relocate to a different state in the near future.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | February 11, 2017 at 12:08 pm | Reply

If it was me, I’d send a rescission letter first and see how they respond.

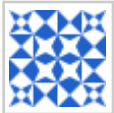

★ Like

Rebecca Charles | March 17, 2017 at 11:52 am | Reply

I have read this article and I am in the boat where I signed the Refusal to Vaccinate form prior to even reading this or knowing what it was all about. I called the pediatricians office and I was told that the original copy was shredded but not before copying it into his electronic medical file. Where do I go from here? How do I get it back? How do I get it cleared off his file?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | April 17, 2017 at 7:21 pm | Reply

Follow the instruction on the page you posted your comment.

★ Like

ReadActOutput | March 18, 2017 at 2:48 pm | Reply

Hi, Thank you so much for this valuable information. My case may be a bit complicated, but here I go.
My 1st child was born in NY, 2007. We lived in NJ. Did not Vax for long. Gave a few shots eventually, under pressure. Then I refused the rest. Out came the refusal form, which I signed, under pressure. This was 2011.
We have since moved to CA. Yes, what a choice. But life brought us here.
Can I still rescind my signature from that form? Or is it toooo late? Is there a time limitations on being able to do this?
Thank you once again.
Hugs.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | April 17, 2017 at 7:21 pm | Reply

Generally the Refusal to Vaccinate form remains with the physician. New physician means a new form for him/her.

★ Like

Destiny | March 26, 2017 at 8:18 pm | Reply

What if I signed this form at the health department where I received the religious exception form? How would I go about contacting them to ask for it to be taken out of my son's file. I had no idea about the dangers of signing this form. Any help would be greatly greatly appreciated. I am worried now. I live in Florida, if that helps.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | April 17, 2017 at 7:18 pm | Reply

You can either send them a letter rescinding your signature or send them a Vaccination Notice.

★ Like

Ken | May 9, 2017 at 11:55 am | Reply

On the letter who do you write it to if you don't know the doctor name and you call there but they give you the run around an want tell you,who do I address this letter to

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | May 12, 2017 at 5:41 pm | Reply

Are you dealing with a pediatric practice that rotates their physicians?

★ Like

Becky | May 12, 2017 at 9:19 pm | Reply

I just called my son's old pediatrician to find out if I had signed one of these. I signed one 8 years ago totally having no idea what it was. We have not seen this pediatrician in at least 4 years. Do I still need to worry about it since we are not seeing this person anymore? I asked them to send me the form to have the original refusal removed from my son's record. I am hoping they do so without incident but in the event they refuse, I was just wondering if I need to pursue it since he is no longer my son's doctor. Thanks!

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | May 13, 2017 at 1:47 pm | Reply

I wouldn't bother if it was me.

★ Like

Val | May 19, 2017 at 8:49 am | Reply

When we were living in CA just before SB277 went into effect, I had taken my 5yr old in to have her Physical school papers signed before entering kindergarten. She was also sick at the time. The Ped wanted to bring her vaccinations up to date but I refused saying she was not well enough. The Dr made me sign the refusal to vaccinate form and she refused to complete her school health form until we returned for vaccinations. We ended up going to a different Dr who was vaccine choice friendly to complete the forms and then shortly after that we moved to MI. We have titers and I don't believe my daughter is on the MCIR – should I worry about the refusal to vaccinate form on file in another state? Can that come back to haunt us in anyway?

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | May 19, 2017 at 9:53 am | Reply

It is unlikely. However, you can always claim it was a "mistake". It is important to understand that in legal-land the word "mistake" is acknowledged.

★ Like

Anna | May 24, 2017 at 2:34 pm | Reply

Hi, Thank you for all the great information on this site. I just had somewhat of a scare regarding this type of situation. I took my youngest son and 2 month old baby to the doctor today. This was my first time taking any of my kids (I have 4) since my husband and I decided not to vaccinate. I wish I had been better informed before I went. I was not asked to sign a refusal form but as the doctor was imputing information into his computer, he asked me about vaccinating them and I innocently (more like ignorantly) told him that my husband and I had done a lot of research and decided no more vaccines for our kids. He then took what I said and made a formal statement out of it... something like: "You have chosen not to vaccinate after much research and are aware of the risks and complications. Is that correct?" It caught me off guard and I just said yes, but since we left I've been very concerned for multiple reasons. Where is he sending that information to? Should I have just said we're not vaccinating for religious reasons because that is more justifiable if anything (God forbid) did happen to my children that they could tie to choosing not to vaccinate? Is this just my doctor's way of covering his butt so I don't sue him or his office if something did happen? Can a verbal agreement like that be as strong as a refusal form legally? Should I have him change what is written in the file to something that will not hold me responsible in any way? Thanks in advance for the help.

★ Like

anticorruptionsociety | May 25, 2017 at 2:42 pm | Reply

It's hard to say what the doctor typed into your child's chart.

You can always present him with a vaccination notice and request it be inserted in the chart.

★ Like

Anna | May 24, 2017 at 3:30 pm | Reply

I should also mention that I live in WI where exemption is legally allowed for reasons of health, religion or personal conviction.

★ Like

Ken | May 31, 2017 at 2:31 am | Reply

Thanks for the information, but I think I made a mistake I have sent the vaccine notice with the letter but on the vaccine noticed I have Friends to sign where Witness supposed to sign and sent it to them, do I resend letter and vaccine notice leaving the witness part blank please help and thanks

★ Like

Javier | July 2, 2017 at 12:03 am | Reply

Darn I started thinking about this I went in recently and didn't want to sign however I did not really thinking about it. I will go back for next check-up in three months is that ok to wait until then or should I go to the front desk and ask for it back sooner? the certified mail has to be mailed in? Thanks!

★ Like

AL Whitney | July 14, 2017 at 11:32 am | Reply

You might have to submit a Vaccination Notice into the record.

★ Like

Blog at WordPress.com.